Please read the following if you intend to designate a non-natural entity as the owner of your Athene Annuity & Life Assurance Company ("Athene Annuity") annuity contract.

Definition of non-natural owner - a non-natural owner is an owner which is not a living person, and would include including trusts, estates, corporations, partnerships, and other similar entities.

Section 72(u) of the Internal Revenue Code provides that if an annuity contract is owned by a non-natural owner, the income on the contract shall be treated as ordinary income received or accrued by the owner during the taxable year unless certain exceptions apply. As a result, Athene Annuity will not treat this contract as tax deferred unless this contract is:

- An annuity acquired by the estate of a decedent by reason of death of the decedent, or
An annuity that is held by a trust or other entity as agent for a natural person.

If either of the above exceptions applies to you, Athene Annuity will treat your contract as tax deferred. In order to notify Athene Annuity of your qualifying exception, you must sign this form and submit it to Athene Annuity.

Athene Annuity is unable to render tax advice. Therefore, we suggest you consult your tax counsel or tax advisor to determine if you qualify for an exception under Section 72(u). Even if an exception applies, Athene Annuity may not accept certain ownership arrangements.

To ATHENE ANNUITY:

I understand that, under Section 72(u) of the Internal Revenue Code, a non-natural owner may own an annuity contract and be entitled to tax-deferred status only if certain exceptions apply. Otherwise, the income on the contract shall be treated as ordinary income received or accrued by the owner during the taxable year.

I certify that the non-natural owner will qualify for a tax-deferral exception under Section 72(u) of the Internal Revenue Code. I have consulted with my tax advisor regarding the foregoing certification. I hereby agree to indemnify and hold Athene Annuity harmless from any adverse tax consequences or other liability that may arise as a result of an incorrect interpretation of Section 72(u).
